

Economic fears declining among the affluent

Published: June 8 2009

www.investmentnews.com — While still worried about the economy, affluent individuals are becoming less anxious, according to a study by New York-based research firm Ipsos Mendelsohn. Conducted at the end of April, the online survey of 1,000 adults with at least $100,000 of household income found that 46% of those ...